

For Immediate Release
March 2, 2009

Gillam & Smith's Gil Gillam Inducted as a Fellow Of the American College of Trial Lawyers

MARSHALL, Texas - The American College of Trial Lawyers, an invitation-only professional organization of trial lawyers in the United States and Canada, has inducted Gillam & Smith LLP name partner Harry "Gil" Gillam as a Fellow.

Mr. Gillam was one of 81 new Fellows inducted at ACTL's 59th Spring Meeting in Fajardo, Puerto Rico. He joins an exclusive group, as Fellowship is extended by invitation only and is limited to the top 1 percent of the total lawyer population from any state or conference.

"I am truly humbled and honored to be recognized as a member of such an outstanding organization," says Mr. Gillam. "I look forward to contributing and working with other Fellows of the College in advancing our profession."

This honor exemplifies Mr. Gillam's long-standing work in trial law. Lawyers must have a minimum of 15 years' trial experience before they may be considered for Fellowship. Invitations are awarded after careful investigation, and to those who have exhibited the highest standards of ethical conduct, professionalism, civility and collegiality.

"We enthusiastically welcome our newly inducted Fellows," said ACTL President Jack Dalton of Atlanta-based Troutman Sanders LLP. "In addition to meeting the stringent, time-honored criteria for Fellowship, we believe each Inductee also shares our organization's mission to continue to support an independent judiciary in both nations and to improve the standards of trial practice and the ethics of our profession."

Gillam & Smith represents a broad spectrum of businesses and individuals in a variety of Intellectual Property, Personal Injury, Oil & Gas, and Commercial Litigation matters. For more information, visit <http://www.gillamsmithlaw.com>.

To interview Mr. Gillam, contact Amy Hunt at 800-559-4534 or amy@androvett.com.